Scoring and Interpretation Information

Average scores (range 1 to 7) for three subscales are presented. An average score is calculated by summing the responses divided by the number of items.

The three subscales are as follows:

- Attractive (items 11, 12, 18, 19, 23, 24, 25): refers to a supervisor who is warm, friendly, supportive, and trust-worthy.
- Interpersonally Sensitive (items 2, 5, 7, 8, 17, 20, 21, 22): refers to attributes such as committed to the relationship, resourceful, and perceptive.
- Task-Oriented (items 1, 3, 4, 6, 9, 10, 13, 14, 15, 16): refers to the attributes such as practical, concrete, evaluative, and focused.

The instructions of the scale asked that at least five questions were marked as average or below, which helps the scale discriminate which of the three supervision styles are most and least endorsed. Noting the pattern of the highest and lowest subscale scores can help a supervisor understand the supervisee perceptions, and adjust supervision if appropriate.

If the scores on all subscales are consistently high (above 6) it may indicate one of the following:

1. The supervisee is extremely happy with the supervision
2. The supervisee did not critically examine the nature of the supervisory relationship
3. The supervisee does not feel comfortable providing critical feedback to the supervisor
